To deliver a safe and healthy treatment experience for our patients and clinicians alike, we are placing increased emphasis on:

- Following the latest Centers for Disease Control guidelines
- Washing hands frequently and thoroughly throughout the day
- Requiring clinicians to wear masks and requiring patients to wear masks or some other kind of face covering
- Sterilizing all clinic surfaces with medical-grade disinfectants after each patient
- Screening all patients, clinicians and team members for potential Coronavirus (COVID-19) exposure
- Adhering to recommended social-distance practices when not delivering hands-on care
- Limiting the number of people in-clinic and scheduling seniors and at-risk patients into lower-traffic hours when possible

Our Commitment to You

Ultimately, we want to get you back to being you. Whatever your treatment goals may be, we believe the single-biggest factor in a successful recovery from injury is completing the recommended course of care.

Additional measures may be necessary to protect your health in our clinics. If so, we will update our practices and policies immediately. With this shared commitment, we are confident we can continue delivering the same high level of care you have come to expect from us.
